FROM OUR FOUNDER

Our mission: for every traveler to experience the world by bike.

I founded DuVine because I believe in the immersive power of bike travel. In more than 20 countries and 50 regions, DuVine treasures what's seasonal, special, and deeply local. Our bike tours are a way to refresh your perception of the world.

Small group sizes allow us to tap into meaningful connections across cultures: you may hop off your bike to taste sun-warmed grapes with a Bordeaux winemaker, sleep in one of nine rooms at the incredibly gorgeous La Donaira hotel in southern Spain, or hand-shape the perfect piece of orecchiette pasta with our friend Chiara at her Apulian masseria. These simple, genuine moments leave you with a lasting sense of belonging—both to the places you visit and the DuVine family.

We thank you for trusting us with your travels,

Andy Levine

THE DUVINE DIFFERENCE

When we began offering bike tours 25 years ago, we focused on finding fascinating local characters and captivating cultural encounters. Today, we're still obsessed with seeking out life's simple pleasures to share with our guests.

What does DuVine do differently? We bypass main roads in favor of going off the beaten path, open the doors to places you may never have found on your own, and create lasting memories through exquisite hotels, transcendent culinary experiences, and kind and passionate people. And when you travel with us, your only responsibility is to enjoy the ride.

Expert Local Guides

Our guides aren't just charismatic hosts and experienced cyclists. They're locals who speak the language, know the roads, and put their spirit of spontaneity to work for you.

Boutique Accommodations

We hand-select luxurious hotels and properties that convey the character of each destination, from a live-aboard Turkish yacht to a fastidious farmhouse in Sonoma, California.

Culinary-Forward Focus

We believe every region is revealed through its cuisine. That's why DuVine tours have a distinctive gourmet flair: think family-run restaurants, intimate cooking classes, Michelin-starred meals, and wine tastings with vintners.

More is Included

The price of a DuVine tour includes more than any other bike outfitter: our favorite accommodations, meals with generous wine pairings, après vélo cocktails, high-end bikes, activities like tastings and truffle hunts, and much more.

Top-Quality Bikes + Support

To ensure that your experience in the saddle is seamless, DuVine is dedicated to providing performance bicycles that are fitted and tuned for each rider, industry-leading cycling gear, turn-by-turn GPS, and full van support.

Thoughtful Trip Design

Our local Trip Designers open doors and find you a seat at the most exclusive tables, infusing every itinerary with their lifelong connections and personal community.

Bigger Isn't Always Better

You won't find smaller group sizes anywhere—our scheduled tours never exceed 14 guests.

CARBON NEUTRAL

We believe that bike travel should leave little behind, so we're committed to making our tours 100% carbon neutral. DuVine is partnering with sustainability company South Pole to offset our greenhouse gas emissions by supporting third-party carbon reduction projects around the world. We strive to set an example for a greener future, and invite our peers in the travel industry to do the same. Learn more about our other sustainability initiatives on pages 42 and 75.

PRIVATE TOURS

Anywhere, anytime. You decide. This is your vacation—where, when, and how you want it, to share with whomever you wish. To go private, simply tell us what you have in mind and we'll handle the rest.

Make it Private

- 1 Take one of our existing scheduled departures and reserve it for your group—and yours alone.

Any DuVine tour can be made private at your request. If you don't see the date you want, we'll create one for you. Or...

- 2 Select from one of our Private-only itineraries.

Our Private-only itineraries are a collection of unique adventures that have been perfected using our breadth of experience and deep understanding of the region.

Go Couture

Couture vacations are the culmination of our extensive expertise. The sky's the limit for what these custom itineraries can include—it's all completely bespoke based on your desires.

Our Trip Designers start with your ideas, then use their infinite creativity and local insight to deliver the cycling and adventure trip of your dreams.

DISCOVER ITALY

Anyone who's been to Italy and tasted the pasta (or olive oil, or heirloom grains, or fresh porcini) will insist that words fail to capture the nuances of flavor. "It's just different," they say. The most treasured souvenir from an Italian vacation may be culinary enlightenment, but it's bike travel that immerses you completely in this prolific land of Piedmontese hazelnuts, Nebbiolo grapes, and Sicilian lemons.

Amalfi

Positano is one of the chicest spots on the Amalfi Coast. We'll show you why while also unveiling what lies beyond: the best-kept secret of the Cilento Coast, a cheesemaker's heavenly mozzarella di bufala, and off-the-radar neighborhoods like the one where Ernest Hemingway hung out.

Cinque Terre

Sun-faded pastel homes, steeply terraced vineyards, bustling harbors, and hiking trails fit together like a puzzle in these five vibrant villages. Eat the best trofie al pesto you'll ever have, then work it off while pedaling to fishing enclaves and climbing ridges high above the Ligurian Sea.

We've handpicked the most rewarding routes through the mythical Dolomites, whispering wheat fields of Tuscany, and seismic contours of Sicily. Along the way, you'll gather glimpses of fading dialects and culinary traditions kept alive by locals. You'll be invited to discover the inherent sense of Italian hospitality rooted in living well. And on your bike, you'll be surrounded by breathtaking scenery that will stay with you forever.

Dolomites

Just south of the Austrian border, the sheer limestone Dolomites are otherworldly in their beauty. Though serious cyclists can't resist the siren song of sinuous passes like the Stelvio, the Italian Alps have a gentler side that includes cowbell serenades, wildflower-strewn meadows, and relaxed riverside riding.

Piedmont

From Alba to Acqui Terme, Piedmont is home to all pleasures of the palate. It's the truffle capital of Italy, birthplace of the Slow Food movement, and producer of Italian wine's three big B's: Barolo, Barbera, and Barberesco—all of which is woven into the region's rolling Langhe Hills.

Puglia

In Puglia, you'll encounter farmers shaking out their centuries-old olive trees, pause in a fishing village for simple grilled seafood, and bike a coastal road to a lighthouse at the terminus of the entire Italian peninsula. It's no wonder this trip is featured in publications like Vogue and Outside.

Sardinia

Even by Mediterranean standards, Sardinia is outstandingly pretty. We love the glamorous, jet-set beaches of Costa Smeralda, but our hearts are drawn to the island's interior. Here, shepherds tend their flock, locals sip mid-day macchiatos, and twisty, traffic-free roads traverse farmland and forested mountains.

DuVine | Italy

The table is set, the bikes are tuned, and our best bottles are uncorked. No one does Italy quite like DuVine. So go ahead—indulge in the trip you’ve always wanted to take. Savor every luscious bite and every last mile.

Sicily

Tradition is fiercely guarded in Sicily—from almond orchards cultivated for generations to man-made marvels of architecture (think UNESCO-protected cathedrals and impeccably preserved Greek temples). As you spin from Baroque cities to family-run farms, you’re sure to feel the warmth and personality of the Old World.

Tuscany

A classic DuVine destination and Italy at its most essential, Tuscany’s green and gold landscapes and famous white gravel are pure bliss for cyclists. Whimsical hill towns tell a fascinating history of pilgrimages, plagues, and politics, but it’s the world-famous wine and handmade meals that stir your soul.

Veneto

Most of the Veneto lies to the north of Venice, where you’ll find the region’s most robust and rustic flavors, idyllic bike paths, sunsets on Lake Garda, and a legacy of Renaissance art. To roam this region is to be enraptured by blooms of wisteria, earthy aromas of grape must, and moody mists billowing off the Mincio River.

DISCOVER FRANCE

Joie de vivre—literally “the joy of living”—is not just a French expression, but a deeply held philosophy that celebrates the petit plaisirs of daily life. More than a turn of phrase, it’s a belief that forms the underlying foundation of our tours: conversation with travel companions becomes an art; meals are mindful, prepared with respect for ingredients. Above all, riding a bicycle brings back childhood feelings of freedom, reminding us of how much happier we are when we make time to play.

Alps

Ride the wild expanse of the French Alps from Lake Geneva to the Mediterranean Sea, crossing off the greatest, hardest, and most famous climbs as you go—Alpe d’Huez, check; Col du Galibier, done—each new challenge like a trophy gathered along perfect ribbons of road.

Bordeaux

Arrive a wine lover, leave a bona fide oenophile: our Bordeaux tours are a full-bodied exploration of French winemaking. Easy vineyard routes meander from the Médoc to Saint-Émilion while you taste at renowned Châteaux and discern the terroir with both your palate and your pedal stroke.

Whether it's briny oysters in Bordeaux, the sunflower-strewn fields of Provence, or an apéritif of Burgundy's sparkling Crémant, each French region offers a distinctive definition of living well.

Burgundy

Raise your glass in a place we've called home for over 25 years. Burgundy isn't just where the Grand Cru was born, it's also where DuVine began—because few destinations are better suited to vineyard cycling (and we always stop to taste the wine).

Corsica

Corsica is France's enfant terrible—charmingly rebellious and fiercely independent. But the island's untamed nature cements it as cycling's next great destination. Mountains ripple across the alpine interior and craggy granite calanques barb the turquoise coastline, making the entire Île de Beauté your cycling Shangri-la.

Dordogne

Though famous for its painted caves at Lascaux, links to history are present everywhere in the Dordogne: ride into ancient Périgord forests, find Michelin dining within the walls of a 14th-century castle, and canoe between cliffsides sculpted by troglodyte dwellings.

Loire

The Loire has long been a land of enchantment. Kings and queens occupied Renaissance châteaux, ate from ever-fertile orchards, and drank the wine that still ages in cellars across the valley. To ride here is to be treated like royalty, relishing gastronomic, horticultural, and architectural spoils aplenty.

Normandy

Normandy's beaches saw invasions that changed the world. Since World War II, the region has transformed into a tranquil sanctuary on the English Channel where the pace is decidedly mellow—order oysters overlooking Mont Saint-Michel or sip cider at a Honfleur inn frequented by Claude Monet.

Provence

In terms of romance, nothing tops Provence: undulating rows of lavender, market stalls filled with irresistible finds, Provençal picnics, and entire towns the color of sunset. From your first sip of rosé to your last ride through the Luberon, it feels like falling in love.

Pyrenees

The untamed frontier that stands between Spain and France features regularly in cycling's greatest race: the Tour de France. Pros have waged legendary battles on cols like the Tourmalet, Aubisque, and Aspin—each climb etched in cycling lore, with summits yielding sweet satisfaction to all who conquer them.

DISCOVER PORTUGAL

What does it mean to fill your cup? If we're being literal, it might entail a pour of the Douro Valley's dark, luscious Port or a crisp Alentejano wine that complements the tangy local sheep's cheese. But more than that, Portugal's inviting culture, complex history, thoughtful cuisine, and positively unparalleled riding will leave your cup overflowing as you recharge your spirit of adventure beyond your wildest imagination.

Alentejo

Between golden plains and Moorish towns, from prehistoric megaliths to thriving vines of Aragonès grapes, and with 15th-century convents reborn as luxury hotels, the Alentejo is where old meets new. Go beyond Lisbon and explore what locals love in Portugal's cork capital.

Algarve

Connecting southern Portugal to Spain, the Algarve guards the Iberian gateway to the Atlantic Ocean. Suffice it to say beach culture is practically a sport: biking is a warm-up for seafood feasts, beach club-hopping, spectacular surfing, and sunbathing in isolated coves.

Azores

The Azores check all boxes of an island getaway with a surprising twist. Volcanic activity underlies this archipelago, from your soothing post-ride soak in hot springs to the local stew cooked in steaming vents—all the while shaping the terrain that makes cycling São Miguel so thrilling.

Douro Valley

The Douro Valley wins visitors over easily. Your moment might arrive on the invigorating descent to the Douro River, or over white port and tonics at Six Senses. Perhaps it's the golden hour glow on chestnut canopies, or maybe you'll be smitten from your first creamy bite of pastéis de nata.

LOCALS WE LOVE

Supporting Local Communities

We strive to bring tourism into lesser-known regions. Our tours stimulate local economies by visiting independent artisans, dining at family-owned restaurants, employing local guides, and partnering with small businesses for activities that uphold the heritage of each destination.

This historian is the keeper of local lore in UNESCO-listed Alberobello, Puglia. After showing us the conical trulli dwellings of his hometown, his mamma prepares lunch in her home kitchen.

Truffle hunting is a trade handed down through generations. In Piedmont, search for truffles with our friend, then taste the treasured morsels with pecorino produced at his family farmhouse.

Female vintners like this trailblazer are paving the way forward in Portuguese winemaking. You're the guest of honor for a white-glove dinner at her ancestral home, an 18th-century palace built by King John V.

Chefs and nonnas across Italy hold the secrets to their region's pasta. At masserias or in cucinas, they'll teach you to make pici, orecchiette, or trofie—each shape an insight into regional tastes and traditions.

DISCOVER SPAIN

To know Spain is to recognize its surprising contrasts: it's almost unimaginable that Andalucía's fiercely sunbaked plains exist in proximity to the snowcapped Sierra Nevadas. Surrealist Salvador Dalí saw the future of art from his native Catalonia, even though his motherland was imprinted with Greek and Moorish artifacts. But despite the juxtaposition, Spain has its constants: welcoming locals, reliable riding weather, and—practically everywhere—roads that seem like they're designed for cyclists alone.

Andalucía

From the tradition of Andalusian horsemanship to the historic production of sherry, Andalucía pays homage to its heritage. But archaic it is not: eco-retreats and haciendas have perfected organic elegance and our routes visit formerly fortified pueblos blancos and towns reverberating with the rhythm of Flamenco.

Costa Brava

The Girona province lies between the French border and Barcelona, making the Costa Brava a cultural melting pot: the gastronomic heartland of Catalonia, with culinary savor-faire around every table. And the scenery? Spin through salt-speckled villages, pretty plains of the Empordà, and coastal cols.

Mallorca Bike Tour

6 days / 5 nights Level: 3 Collection: Classic

Mallorca

Mallorca marries Mediterranean luxury with some of the most mouthwatering roads on the planet—it's obvious why pro cyclists clamor to ride here. The Tramuntana Mountains are practically a place of pilgrimage, while rides like the Cap de Formentor are legendary in their own right.

Rioja

Many assert that La Rioja is the “real Spain”: birthplace of the Spanish language, bridge to Basque country, and arguably the country's top wine region. Seekers come to conquer the Camino de Santiago on foot or by bicycle, but happily find all Spain's highlights here in this single region.

Highlights

- Ride a spectrum of stunning landscapes as you climb into the Tramuntana mountain range and spin along the shimmering northwest coast
- Explore Pollença, an artists' hideaway buzzing with cafés and galleries, formerly frequented by the likes of Winston Churchill and Agatha Christie
- Relax at sublime hotels including the luxurious La Residencia and Hotel Castell Son Claret
- Include the Cap de Formentor ride among your cycling accomplishments, reaching the lighthouse on the island's eastern peninsula

Eat

Paella, fresh citrus and figs, olives, sobrasada sausage, ensaimada pastries, and seafood like langoustines and locally caught fish

Drink

Distinctive, locally produced wine varietals including Callet and Manto Negro, plus young white wines like Prensal

DISCOVER GREATER EUROPE

Because cycling is second nature in Europe, it's easy to follow word of mouth to the next great discovery. Ride past a café and locals will point you to their favorite place for lunch. While you sample the rösti or maybe a meze of dolmas and dips, the neighboring table eagerly recommends the best pub for a freshly pulled pint or a castle you simply must see in the countryside.

Croatia

Imagine a place that combines all your favorite parts of Europe. With a maritime border shared by Italy, lavender fields in Hvar that could pass for Provence, and the coastal city of Split borrowing Bohemian architecture, Croatia is a veritable highlight reel right on the glittering Dalmatian coast.

Czech Republic

Czechia is where Frank Gehry's buildings sprung up beside Baroque castles; where the Wachau Valley's winegrowing potential is flourishing and the Pálava biosphere receives UNESCO recognition. This constant evolution is ideal for active travel, replete with experiences that are continuously moving forward.

England

The Cotswolds invite you to escape the hurried pace of daily life. Consider the meditative movement of bicycling a riff on the British tradition of strolling the countryside, and find serenity on lovely lanes that connect one riverside settlement of honey-colored cottages to another.

Greece

Greek islands dot the Aegean like a string of jewels in the sapphire-blue sea. Your private yacht parts the waters—a nod to Homer's seafaring Odyssey—delivering you to the ride's départ in sunbleached villages. At day's end, sip ouzo beneath bougainvillea or catch the sunset from a black-sand beach.

From Scotland to Slovenia, there's something unexpected around every corner, just waiting for you to roll up and find it. Your bicycle may take you through Holland's tulip fields, to the edge of the Dingle peninsula in Ireland, or even to a Turkish Wonder of the Ancient World.

After all, Europe is the place that gave us the bicycle. The world's most-watched cycling races transpire here each year, and in some cities, nearly a third of residents ride their bike each day to work. It's no wonder that cycling in Europe just seems meant to be—not merely a sport, but a way of life.

Holland

The Dutch have been going about their daily business by bike for over 100 years. Join them on peaceful paths that pass sea dikes, windmills, and canals—best seen in tulip season, when the world's flower capital is in bloom (and its perfume is best breathed in from your bicycle).

Ireland

From the Ring of Kerry to the Gap of Dunloe, Ireland's verdant beauty is ageless. Dublin's historic streets have been worn smooth by the soles of passing pedestrians; whiskey is distilled just as it was centuries ago. Our tour hits MacGillycuddy's Reeks, Killarney National Park, and all the timeless must-dos in between.

Scotland

Scotland's ancestry is a point of pride. Perfectly manicured links remind you that this is the home of golf—especially in St. Andrews, where our tour splits the difference between swinging on the green and shifting gears. Or, dedicate a week to cycling the Scottish Highlands, from mythical lochs to magical hotels.

Slovenia

Slovenia's popularity is moments from a meteoric rise. Natural features like the Julian Alps, serpentine Soča river, and terra rossa terroir are swoon-worthy alone; add a boom in high-end dining with a focus on sustainable farming, and you'll see what's winsome about this central European shrine to Mother Nature.

Switzerland

Switzerland has as many iconic rides as France or Italy—plus an extra edge of luxury. Bike the Brünig Pass between Interlaken and Lucerne and find your rhythm in Alpine pastures, then slow down at jet-set hotels or in Gstaad's scrupulous chalets (with a glass of white wine in hand).

View all Greater Europe tours on DuVine.com

Turkey

Turkey's Turquoise Coast is awash in mysticism: sail through Bodrum's secret swimming coves, then spin to well-weathered temples and ancient tombs. Every mile transcends time and space—until you resurface in tiny towns where the smell of Turkish coffee mingles with salty Mediterranean air.

MEET OUR GUIDES

They're your leaders on and off the road: fixing flats, preparing picnics, and cheering you on through a challenge.

But DuVine guides are so much more than that. They're compassionate, open-hearted, and intuitive companions with worldviews built on their diverse and fascinating personal histories. Our guide team includes former pro cyclists, winemakers, and PhD scholars. They've worked in Michelin kitchens and helmed cycling publications. DISCOVER THE U.S.

Domestic bike tours showcase America's expansive diversity: some states thickly forested and others carved from lunarlike sandstone, linking the sun-drenched vineyards of California wine country to canopies of New England's finest fall foliage, with islands both lushly tropical and coolly coastal—there are easily a thousand different worlds encompassed in the land that spans from sea to shining sea. Whatever type of vacation you seek, it's likely you can find it close to home.

Blackberry Farm, TN

The coveted retreat at Blackberry Farm is a sublime backdrop to unforgettable cycling in the Great Smoky Mountains. In addition to the property's James Beard Award-winning restaurant, sumptuous spa, and gorgeous grounds, the spectacular riding ranges from rolling farm roads to European-style climbs.

Coastal Islands, ME

If you've never spent a summer in Maine, let us paint the picture: cool off with an afternoon swim in the quarry. Fill your belly with buttery lobster rolls. Grab handfuls of wild blueberries while hiking. This tour stirs joyous childhood memories while speaking to your grown-up sensibility.

On a bike, you'll follow your senses in each of our U.S. destinations. Chase the sound of a crashing waterfall into the jungles of Maui. Ride through grain fields that become the bourbon in your glass at a Hudson Valley distillery. And after a full day of cycling, thank your body by melting into a big white bed at some of the world's most beautiful hotels.

Hudson Valley, NY

It's hard to believe this pastoral paradise is only 100 miles from Manhattan. Sleepy towns, fertile farmland, and covered bridges are just downriver in Dutchess County—a haven of stylish country hotels and home to a farm-to-table revival all its own.

Maui, HI

Say aloha to the Valley Isle and climb from South Maui's sun-drenched beaches to the lush and misty Upcountry. The way is paved with tropical trappings: guava groves, sacred volcanoes, world-famous waves, luxury villas, and Polynesian flavors that taste like paradise.

San Juan Islands, WA

Washington State's San Juan Islands brim with small-town charisma. Our trip spans Friday Harbor to Langley, with the best of the Pacific Northwest: shucking your own oysters, picnicking on Puget Sound, and riding to the top of Mount Constitution, where on a clear day views stretch far back to the shimmering glaciers of Mt. Rainier.

Shenandoah Valley, VA

Explore the cradle of Civil War America: conquer a challenging ride on Skyline Drive, stay at a spate of elegant inns and manors, uncover Virginia's unexpected gourmet side, and ride Appalachia's Blue Ridge range. With evocative country scenery and rides for all abilities, the Shenandoah Valley is a cycling paradise.

Woodstock, VT

On a scenic spin through New England, you're treated to glimpses of Americana at its absolute quaintest: leaf-peeping along the Ottauquechee River, cheese tastings at family-run dairy farms, and rides through wide-open spaces where makers like microbrewers and glassblowers have found ceaseless inspiration.

Zion, UT

Zion National Park, crown jewel of the Southwest, is nothing if not dramatic—imagine a wonderland of river valleys, vibrant sandstone cliffs, and hanging gardens. On this trip we also hike between totem-like hoodoos in Bryce Canyon National Park and bike by lava flows in Snow Canyon State Park.

DISCOVER AFRICA

Africa is as multifaceted as its many different hues: the crimson in a glass of Pinotage, the terra cotta of the kasbah fortress, the shocking swaths of green at the base of Morocco's Toubkal Mountain, or the great blue mouth of the Atlantic in Hout Bay, South Africa. Whether you're interested in heading north to ramble the Atlas foothills and ancient cities or traveling south to see where traditions mingle in Cape Town, we'll show you the pleasures of sundowners, souks, and single tracks from the saddle.

Morocco

Like the spices, fruits, and flowers arranged for sale in its famous souks, Morocco is effusively beautiful and beguiling to the senses. Entrust your bicycle to lift the veil on the vitality of North Africa, where mornings might begin with a hike to remote Berber villages and days end beneath the desert stars.

South Africa

The rainbow nation is a tapestry of languages, backgrounds, and beliefs interwoven with landmarks like Table Mountain and Chapman's Peak. Explore the Western Cape and Winelands by mountain bike, discovering not only Afrikaner traditions and communities but a modern art and culinary movement.

DISCOVER LATIN AMERICA

DuVine's Latin America trips are some of the most adventurous because there's no one way to embody the breadth of natural splendor: mountains to coasts; rainforests to cloud forests; volcanoes to vineyards. South and Central America have long been mindful of preserving the environmental treasures that define and differentiate their countries. What better way to honor this colorful, unspoiled region—while still covering plenty of ground—than touring it by bicycle, one of the lowest-impact methods of travel?

View all Africa + Latin America tours on DuVine.com

Chile

Sandwiched between the Pacific Ocean and the Andes, Chile is a playground for admirers of the natural world. Our tour of the Lakes and Volcanoes district reveals the snow-capped Osorno volcano, glassy freshwater lakes, and dramatic waterfalls—plus Patagonia's premier eco-chic hotels.

Costa Rica

Pura vida is more than just a slogan: it's a reminder to appreciate the adventure that is cycling Costa Rica's rainforest trails, rafting the Sarapiquí River, or surfing Tamarindo Bay. In effect: stop and savor the beaches, be mindful of the biodiversity, and discover every little pleasure by bike.

Uruguay

With knockout coastlines, sophisticated wine bodegas, and the buzzy capital of Montevideo, Uruguay is a dreamlike setting for bike travel in South America. Take a tango lesson or a cooking class; sip Tannat or sample asado—here, the countryside is just as dynamic as the cobblestoned historic cities.

Cannondale Quick 1 Disc

European + U.S. Hybrid Bike

Our Cannondale Quick 1 Disc and Specialized Sirrus Comp Disc hybrid bikes are tailored to the DuVine guest. A compact crank makes for easy spinning and the tires are wider than a road bike (but not too heavy!) for a happy medium between stability and performance.

European bikes may vary depending on destination.

Our Fleet in the Rest of the World

Wherever our travels take us, we use bikes best-suited to the local terrain. For tours in the rest of the world, please check the bike details provided on each tour page on DuVine.com.
